An Empirical Study on Entrepreneurial Leadership, Business Leaders’ Inspiration & Style

U. Jawahar Supraveen,
Assistant Professor,
Sir Vishveshwaraiah Institute of Science and Technology,
Andhra Pradesh, India.
E-mail: ujsupraveen@gmail.com

D. Prabhakar,
Assistant Professor,
Sri Krishnadevaraya Institute of Management (SKIM),
Sri Krishna Devaraya University,
Andhra Pradesh, India.

Abstract
Modern novel business world is more competitive and challenging the entrepreneurial leaders with high level of self-efficacy and strategic forte for developing subsist business organizations. In managing the enterprises, leaders require not only physical infrastructure but also intellectual capital with cutting edge knowledge with incessant training and development for the use of scantly resources in the optimal way. In this context the research paper investigates how the business leaders got inspired and gained the relevant knowledge experience from their role models- with in the country or outside the country and also from the political leaders and business leaders, who inspired from their style in Leadership. Effective learning in entrepreneurship is possible only for those who are self-managed and self-determined to be successful.

Key Words: self-efficacy, knowledge, subsist, incessant, self-controlled, Inspiration